As the Covid-19 virus continues to spread around the globe and in our community, the citizens naturally have many questions regarding the virus. The questions of preparedness, what to do to prevent yourself and loved ones from getting the virus, what are the symptoms, what to do if infected, and numerous other questions continuously arise. Unfortunately, there is a lot of misinformation being spread throughout the world. This misinformation causes unnecessary panic, and often leads to the spreading of this virus. We have compiled this list as a service to give our citizens a place where they could find trusted information. There are other credible sources of information, but this list should at least be a starting point to find valid information that can protect our lives and the lives of our loved ones.
